Title of the program	EGG DROPPING CHALLENGE
Brief report on the event	Natural disasters happen all over the world and can cause extreme damage and loss of life. The safe and accurate delivery of life-sustaining supplies to disaster relief efforts or military supply locations is an unpredictable real-world design challenge. Using the engineering design process limited supplies , design, create and test devices in an effort to investigate problems associated with supply delivery in remote regions. They mimic the process engineers use when designing devices for airdrop supplies. This approach highlights the intersection of problem-solving techniques with engineering principles, making it a valuable exercise for understanding how to manage constraints and optimize solutio
